HELPING PEOPLE BUILD SOLUTIONS

Why Mediation Training?

Throughout the country a new awareness has emerged that the courthouse is not the best or only place for people to go for help when they are in conflict. Individuals, families and organizations involved in disputes are now turning to mediation as an alternative to the adversarial legal process.

Ohio courts are frequently referring disputing parties to mediation as a less expensive and less time-consuming alternative to litigation.

As more individuals and organizations are becoming aware of the advantages of mediation, many professionals are recognizing the benefits of expanding their career base to include conflict resolution services such as mediation.

About the Presenter

Shelley Whalen - Since 1988 Shelley has been the Executive Director of Community Mediation Services of Central Ohio (CMS), one of the largest conflict management resource centers in Ohio. During her tenure at CMS Shelley has successfully mediated hundreds of disputes, including extremely complex cases involving government officials, Fortune 500 companies, entire neighborhoods and school districts. She was one of the original members of the Franklin County Domestic Relations Court Mediation Program Development Task Force and is a former President of the Ohio Mediation Association.

About CMS

In addition to its open-to-the-public training classes, Community Mediation Services of Central Ohio currently offers:

- Conflict Coaching Services to individuals and organizations
- Presentations suitable for professional conferences
- CUSTOMIZED training classes for private and public organizations who want to equip their leadership with the skills they need to effectively resolve their own day to day disagreements as well as help facilitate the peaceful/respectful resolution of conflict between others

CMS' customized classes may be provided days, evenings or weekends at your offices or ours.

Discounts are available for groups.
